Telehealth Consent Form

Introduction

Telehealth involves the use of electronic communications to enable providers at different locations to share individual client information for the purpose of improving client care. Providers may include primary care practitioners, specialists, and/or subspecialists. The information may be used for diagnosis, therapy, follow-up and/or education, and may include any of the following:

- Client health records
- Live two-way audio and video
- Output data from health devices and sound and video files
- Electronic systems used will incorporate network and software security protocols to protect the confidentiality of client identification and imaging data and will include measures to safeguard the data and to ensure its integrity against intentional or unintentional corruption.

Expected Benefits

- Improved access to care by enabling a client to remain in his/her provider's office (or at a remote site) while the providers obtain test results and consults from practitioners at distant/other sites.
- More efficient client evaluation and management.
- Obtaining expertise of a distant specialist.

Possible Risks

There are potential risks associated with the use of telehealth. These risks include, but may not be limited to:
